

Taehyun Kim

Taehyun Kim
Chung-Ang University

" Between Votes and Allies: South Korea's Strategic Dilemma in a World of Uncertainties"

Thursday, January 13, 2005
12:00 p.m.
Mershon Center
Room 120

Lunch will be served to those who RSVP to Ann Powers no later than Tuesday, January 11, 2005.

Professor Taehyun Kim teaches at the Graduate School of International Studies, Chung-Ang University, Seoul, S. Korea. A graduate from Seoul National University's International Relations Department (BA 1981; MA 1983), he received Ph.D. in political science from the Ohio State University in 1991 with a dissertation on U.S.-Soviet rivalry in the Third World. Before joining Chung-Ang University in 1998, he was a visiting assistant professor at University of Florida, Gainesville (1989-90), Merriam Fellow at University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign (1990-91), and a senior fellow and director for foreign policy and security studies program at the Sejong Institute (1992-1998). He also has consulted South Korean government for foreign policy and national security issues in a number of capacities and currently serves as the director of the Center for Foreign Policy and National Security of the East Asia Institute.

He has written scores of articles, either in English or Korean, on such subject as international relations theory, foreign policy analysis, inter-Korean relations, international relations in East Asia, and other international security issues. His latest writings include "Brother or Enemy? An Analysis of South Korean Mass Public Attitudes toward North Korea" (2000; mimeo); "Engaging the Estranged: Reciprocity and Cooperation on the Korean Peninsula" (Journal of East Asian Studies , 2003); "The Latest Wave of Anti-Americanism in South Korea: Its Political Psychological Roots" (Korea and World Affairs , 2004, in Korean).